Welcome to Visitors

SANTA BARBARA COUNTY

Where Ocean and Mountain Meet in Friendly Atmosphere

A land of gracious living, Santa Barbara County is leisurely, hospitable and naturally beautiful in its oak-covered hills, mountains, expanses of seashore and many tree-shaded valleys. In fiestas, in architecture and in its way of living, it has kept alive the spirit of early California and old Spain. Possessed of an equable climate, the county is a bower of flowers the year-round—in home gardens, on the landscaped estates and ranches of the retired wealthy, in miles of springtime wild flowers and in vast commercial flower fields where most of the nation's flower seeds are grown. Luxurious hotels, quaint inns, guest ranches, mountain and seashore resorts and motels, located in trim and sparkling cities.

Buellton—hotel, motels and restaurant famous for split-pea soup.

Carpinteria—attractive town on the ocean. Extensive avocado and lemon groves. Hotels, motels and beach cottages. Fine beach. Excellent swimming and beach sports.

Elwood oil fields—derricks on piers over the ocean.

Gaviota Pass—historic, narrow opening through striking rock formations.

Goleta—center of lemon, walnut and avocado growing area and suburb of Santa Barbara. Location of Santa Barbara Airport.

Guadalupe—sugar beets and vegetable fields.

La Purisima Concepcion Mission—near Lompoc, a State historical monument. Careful restoration of mission founded in 1787 almost complete. Original planting of gardens duplicated with 15,000 plants.

Las Cruces—gateway to Lompoc Valley, flower seed capital of the world.

Lompoc—this valley and Santa Maria Valley together produce almost 90% of world's flower seeds. Flowers in great squares of color blanket the valley floor for miles. Hotels and motels.

Los Alamos—trading center for big ranching country.

Los Olivos—has tavern which once served stage-coach passengers. Gateway to Figueroa Mountain Lookout (4500').

Montecito and Hope Ranch—suburb of Santa Barbara. Large residences and estates. Fine hotels and motels.

Orcutt—trading center for Orcutt oil field.

San Marcos Pass across Santa Ynez Mountains—at top of pass (2224') side road east, "El Camino Cielo," scenic drive along crest to La Cumbre Peak Lookout (3985'). View of Santa Barbara, miles of coast, Channel Islands.

Santa Barbara—bright, clean city of flowers, red tile roofs, white stucco walls. Casa Covarrubias, built in 1817, one of several old Spanish adobe houses still standing. El Paseo and El Presidio, two modern, Spanish-style courts built onto old adobe structures, containing unusual shops. County Courthouse: elaborate building in park setting; finest Spanish architecture and decorations. Public Library with outside reading room. Museum of Fine Arts, choice collections. Santa Barbara Mission: famous twin bell towers, hand-carved doors, century-old gardens. Conducted tours for visitors. Museum of Natural History, well-displayed exhibits of present-day animal and prehistoric Indian life of area. Botanic Garden: thousands of plants of hundreds of different species. Ocean front: yacht harbor, University of California-Santa Barbara campus (new site), West Beach and Municipal Pool, the Wharf, East Beach, picnic ground, palm-lined Cabrillo Blvd. Superb hotels and motels along ocean, in town and on Riviera. Swimming, surf sports, fishing, sailing, golf, riding, etc.

Santa Maria—little city with big streets—originally built wide enough to turn wagons drawn by six-ox teams. Center of great flower and vegetable seed producing area. During blooming seasons thousands of acres of brilliant color stretch in all directions. Fine inns, hotels, motels, trailer camps. Home of University of Southern California College of Aeronautics.

Santa Ines Mission—chapel with original Indian decorations, seventeenth-century Spanish carvings and paintings. Fine collection of cloth-of-gold vestments. Unique bell tower.

Santa Ynez—center of Santa Ynez Valley—its fine ranches, Palomino horse raising, and dude ranches.

Solvang—a Danish community supported by dairying and field crops. Church and a few houses in Danish architecture.

SANTA BARBARA

CITY OF INCOMPARABLE BEAUTY

STEEPED IN THE TRADITION

OF OLD SPAIN

SUN-KISSED, mountain-girded and island-guarded, beautiful Santa Barbara lies in a flowerland valley, the gentle Pacific at its feet, the purple mountains its backdrop. Much of Santa Barbara's glory stems from its romantic Spanish background, its early Spanish gentlemen and Mission fathers, its gayety as the center of early culture and leadership. Today, Santa Barbara's heritage has passed into good hands – and its soft, sweet-scented air, its mode of life, its architecture and its people alike retain much of its early day grandeur. Landmarks have been retained, the days of the Dons are relived annually in its great Fiesta, and its gentle, year-round, even temperature has attracted internationally known writers, painters, sculptors and musicians. Truly to see Santa Barbara is to see a bountiful land, inspired, gracious; wonderfully beautiful.

CLIMATOLOGICAL DATA

"The All Year Vacation City"

A secret of Santa Barbara's agreeable year-around climate, one of the most equable anywhere, is its "southern exposure" to the Pacific. Twenty-seven miles off the mainland the Channel Islands form a ninety-mile barricade against strong ocean winds and currents. Landward the scenic Santa Ynez mountains shut off extremes of inland desert and mountain temperatures.

Average high temperature 70.5. Average low 49.2.

Average mean temperature, winter 56.8; summer 63.04.

Average annual rainfall 18 inches.

Average air movement—less than four miles an hour.

HUMIDITY—Due to the equable atmospheric conditions which generally prevail in Santa Barbara, the air is not generally dry nor is the humidity excessive.
